Hague, August 21.

'WE learn by the last Letters 'from Hanover, that his 'Britannick Majesty, im- 'mediately after he had re- 'ceived the News of the late Queen's Decease 'and of his own Proclamation, dispatched 'his Chamberlain the Chevalier van Rhede 'to the Court of Berlin, to notify the same 'to the King of Prussia, and to acquaint 'him that he was desirous to have an Inter- 'view with him, if it might be, before his 'Departure: But as the Time pressed, the 'said Express was ordered not to stay above 'a Day at most at Berlin, and to hasten 'back with his Prussian Majesty's Resolution. 'When the Treaty of Commerce with 'Spain comes to be exchanged, there will 'not be any publick Fire-Works and other 'extraordinary Rejoycings made here for 'it, because we look upon it as dependent 'on and comprehended in that which this 'State has made with France. A Scaffold 'is going to be built in the great Hall here, 'for the Drawing of the State-Lottery the '1st of October: The Machine which is 'to hold the Tickets, will be 36 Foot in 'Circumference.

'Letters from Baden of the 7th Instant 'tell us, that the Count de Metternich, 'Plenipotentiary of the King of Prussia, had 'spoken in pretty vehement Terms to the 'Count du Luc, upon the Engagements 'which his most Christian Majesty's Mini- 'sters entred into at Utrecht, as well with 'those of Great-Britain as of his Prussian Ma- 'jesty, touching the Abolition of the 4th 'Article of the Treaty of Ryswick, (which 'is confirmed by the 3d Article of that of 'Rastat;) but could not get from him any 'Satisfactory Answer: Which made the Ar- 'rival there of a British Minister the more 'earnestly wished for, to joyn his Efforts 'with those of his Prussian Majesty.

'We have Letters from Stockholm of 'the 28th of July, which relate that 'the Court of Admiralty had that Week 'adjudged to be lawful Prize and con- 'fiscated Eight more Ships, English and 'Dutch. Letters from Hambourg of the '17th of this Month advise, that M. Poussin En- 'voy of France was returned thither, well sa- 'tisfied with having obtained of the King of 'Denmark that Letters from Sweden shall 'pass as formerly by Elsingnor. The Ba- 'ron de Kniephausen arrived at Hambourg 'the 16th from Berlin: He was to proceed 'to the Court of Denmark, there to pro- 'pose ('twas surmised) something of Im- 'portance relating to the Affairs of the 'North; after which, he is to go to the 'Court of France, if the Peace between 'the Empire and France be soon concluded 'and ratified. Major Ohlan had waited on 'the King of Denmark at Gottorp with 'the Articles of Capitulation granted to 'the Governour of Heyligland, and was 'returned with them ratified. This Island 'standing high on steep Rocks was judged 'almost impregnable, nor would it have 'been taken so easily now by the Danes, had 'not an Inhabitant (who was taken Priso- 'ner) shewed them the only Place in it 'where they could put a-shore and land. 'The Court of Hesse-Cassel being inform- 'ed of the good Order given by the Court 'of Hanover, for preventing the Passage of 'their Troops into Pomerania, have coun- 'termanded them. The Articles of Capi- 'tulation for Heyligland, are in Substance, 'I. That the Governour with the Garrison 'of 150 Men, shall be conducted to Husum 'and thence to Eutin. II. That the Inha- 'bitants shall keep their Liberties and Privi- 'leges. III. That all Prisoners shall be set 'free. And IV. That all Vessels taken shall 'be restored to the Proprietors. These Let- 'ters from Hambourg add, that the Duke 'of Brunswick-Wolfenbuttel was expected 'there in a few Weeks, and that then they 'would begin to perform Operas, which 'that Duke is desirous to see. The King of 'Denmark's Departure from Gottorp for 'Copenhagen was fixed to the 24th of this 'Month. Eight Swedish Officers who were 'Prisoners on Parole in Seeland, attempt- 'ing lately to escape in a Boat and to pass 'over to Schonen, were intercepted and 'carried into Copenhagen: They alledged 'in their Defence, that they were compel- 'led to it by Necessity, not receiving any 'Money or Means of Subsisting from the 'Regency of Sweden; whereupon they 'were not only pardoned, but the King of 'Denmark allows them 20 Sols each a Day for 'Subsistance. Letters from Warsaw of the 4th 'of August advise, that the 3d by the King's 'Order 7 Regiments began to move towards 'the Palatinate of Sendomir; and that General 'Canitz, with those and other Troops under 'his Command, was ordered to encamp 'near Oparow, to protest against the as- 'sembling of the particular Diets of the Pa- 'latinates of Cracow and Sendomir, and 'withal to declare that his Majesty will treat 'as Seditious and Rebels all those who shall 'dare

'dare to mount on Horſeback on any ſuch 'Occaſion without being firſt Authorized by 'himſelf, the Primate of the Kingdom, or 'ſome lawful Council of the Republick. 'This Declaration was judged the more 'neceſſary to be made, becauſe not only the 'Nobility of thoſe two Palatinates had threat-'ned to hold Diets ſpeedily, but the Great 'Marſhal of the Crown eſpouſed their 'Party, and had put under the Command 'of Czermenski, Caſtellan of Kiow, 60 'Troops detached from the Army of the 'Crown to aſſiſt them. The King has ſent 'expreſs Order to the ſaid great Marſhal, to 'reſume the Command given to that Caſtel-'lan, and not to ſuffer any Troops to joyn 'the Nobility of thoſe two Palatinates.

Laſt Night arrived the Mail from France of Monday the 9th Inſtant.

From the Paris Letter, dated Aug. 22.

Paris, Aug. 22. 'Tis adviſed from the Camp before Barcelona the 3d, that the Curtain was intirely ruined, and that Men were ſet to Work to change the Batteries, and to raiſe one of 26 Guns on the Glacis, to make an end of ruining the Faces of the two Baſtions againſt which the Miners had been working three Days, ſo that on the 2d they had carried forward 6 Toiſes of Work, when the Beſieged perceiving it, made a Sally that Evening, and killed or took ſeven Spaniſh Miners who were not ſupported by a Number of Troops ſufficient to cover and ſecure them. The Action was fierce for three quarters of an Hour, but the Beſieged were vigorouſly repulſed by the Piquets of the Army, and notwithſtanding the great Fire of their Artillery and Muſquets they loſt many more Men than we: The Mines were continued, and were to be finiſhed the 9th or 10th. The Beſiegers had not yet loſt 500 Men, nor any Perſon of Diſtinction, (except ſome Captains and Lieutenants,) through the Precaution of the Duke of Berwick and his good Management of the Troops, chuſing rather to delay the taking of the Place 5 or 6 Days, than to throw away Men unneceſſarily. He reckoned however to be Maſter of it the 15th or 16th at furtheſt, whatever Reſiſtance the Beſieged might make, who were unskilled how to defend themſelves, and yet perſiſted in their Obſtinacy, having on the 2d placed in the Breach a Black Colours with a Death's Head in it. 'Tis not this that gives us any Apprehenſion, but what we dread is, that they will defend themſelves retreating by Intrenchments to Montjuy, which might ſpin out the Siege into Length. The Beſiegers could ſee the Monks in the Town through the Embraſures, with their Sleeves tucked up to their Elbows, loading and firing the Cannon, but they had hardly any Shot left but Stones; beſides, they made Proceſſions, and preached to the People to animate them to hold out, aſſuring them that St. Jagonde would ſoon come to deliver them, and give them the Victory over the Gevaches (ſo they call the Caſtilians in Deriſion.) They would alſo appear on the Ramparts, and rail very ſcurrilouſly at our Men, who repaid them in as bad Language. The Paris Letter does not make the leaſt Mention of the Death of her late Majeſty, &c.
